The Big Picture

AFSAC

- Security Assistance
 - Its all about partnerships
- Why do we do it?
 - National Security Objectives
 - Interoperability
- What it's not?
 - Arming of the world
 - Selling of U.S.'s old inventory

“Security Cooperation efforts influence the behaviors of a wide array of potential adversaries and develop the capacity of allies and friendly nations to ensure regional stability.”

Summary

AFSAC

- Foreign Military Sales is a primary component of the US National Security Strategy emphasizing engagement, access and interoperability
- AFSAC is the AF Center of Excellence for developing and executing FMS programs
- We are transforming and improving FMS case execution and supply management

“We need friends and partners around the world with the capabilities to take care of their own security and the will to join us in coalitions. That’s what relationship building is all about.”

-- Bruce Lemkin, Deputy Undersecretary of the Air Force for International Affairs
